Cable Industry News

Comcast subscribers will be receiving a rebate for the lack of sports programming on regional sports networks. The company has stated that it will pass along 100 percent of funds it receives from the networks, some of which Comcast owns in whole or in part.

Cord-cutting hit a new peak in the second quarter of 2020, with cable subscriptions down 7.7 percent. Due to general long-term trends in the industry and to the pandemic specifically, operators are expecting even worse numbers for the remainder of the year. Comcast lost 478 thousand subscribers, compared to 224 thousand in the second quarter of 2019.

Internet service providers, including Comcast, have inaugurated a program entitled “K-12 Bridge to Broadband”, under which school districts across the country can buy internet service in bulk from the providers and provide it to students.

DirecTV is on the market for about one-third of what AT&T paid for the satellite provider five years ago. The service currently has 14 million subscribers, down from 22 million in 2015. With this sale and the phase-out of U-verse, the company is focusing on its streaming service AT&T TV.

Commission Assistance to Residents

At the request of the Commission, Comcast has completed the burial of an exposed cable running across three properties in West Bloomfield.

The company is working on the burial of a cable under the street in another location. The Commission was made aware that the cable is currently running between two trees across the street from each other.

A subscriber lost service on two Comcast telephone lines and called the Commission. When the matter was referred to Comcast, the service was restored, even though local communities and the Commission have no authority over telephone service.

Another subscriber contacted the Commission regarding intermittent internet service, another service over which local bodies have no jurisdiction. Comcast replaced the residential drop to the residence, and the problem was resolved.
